PlanView Announces E-Training Curriculum with ESI

March 1, 2004

MARCH 2004—Enterprise portfolio and project management vendor PlanView has entered into an agreement with ESI International to provide PlanView customers with access to ESI's Web-based e-training project management curriculum.

Through PlanView's newly created PlanView University, customers can also participate in classroom training, online personalized mentoring and computer-based tutorials.

"To help customers get the greatest return on portfolio management solutions, vendors must offer more than just software, yet too often they provide inadequate training and support to allow professionals to fully benefit from their tools," said Greg Gilmore, PlanView COO. "Adding ESI's project management e-training program to PlanView University's offerings confirms our commitment to serving the needs of customers by providing the educational resources they need to improve work management, deliver investment analysis, ensure corporate governance compliance, and increase profitability."
